Early Chinese film history

In nearly thirty years (1905—1935) Chinese film suffered a hard transformation from relying on foreign resources to producing films independently.

As the first Chinese film, The Battle of Mount Dingjun was made by Ren Qingtai in 1905. It was adapted from a Peking Opera of the same title by a notable performer of Peking Opera, Tan Xinpei. The shooting of the film marked the official birth of Chinese film. Although it seemed that The Battle of Mount Dingjun was rough and ordinary, it was of great significance then. It marked the pioneering beginning to make films for Chinese people. It was the rare material not only for the history of Chinese film, but also for the history of Chinese Peking Opera.

In 1913, as the first film company set up by Chinese people, Xinmin Film Company was founded. And the first Chinese short feature film The Couple in Hard Times came out then.

In 1923, Star Company produced An Orphan Rescues His Grandfather and aroused a stir then. As a milestone of early Chinese film, An Orphan Rescues His Grandfather with its successful box office appealing to Chinese Cai Chusheng drew much attention of a large audience, and it became the first Chinese film awarded the international prize in the next year. In 1935, the premiere (首映) of Children of Trouble Times was held in Shanghai, whose theme song, March of the Volunteers, was later confirmed to be the national anthem of the People's Republic of China.

Mr Smith, my 10-grade English teacher, was one of the teachers who I would never forget and the story between Mr Smith and me was the most amazing one I wanted to share.

When I was young at school, I loved talking, which was not always appreciated by Mr Smith. Mr Smith was a teacher whom no one liked because he was too strict. He stood about 5.5 feet, was very thin and wore his hair pulled back in a way that gave him a horsey (像马的) look. Whenever he got upset, he would

Do you want to entertain yourself at home with some old beach movies? Now I'd like to introduce some to you.

The Shallows* (2016) directed by Jaume Collet-Serra

Blake Lively plays a medical student enjoying a little beach fun after her mum's passing. She surfs some waves before a shark appears and traps her on a tiny rock in the shallows. The two play a game of brains that'll keep you anxious. In the end, the girl lives on and heads right back out to surf again.

Cast Away* (2000) directed by Robert Zemeckis

This is the film that made the beach volleyball character Wilson a household name. The volleyball becomes Chuck Noland's best friend in this film about living, loneliness, and never losing hope. The man lives for years alone on a desert island after he survives a plane crash. Tom Hanks dropped some weight to play the character.

Point Break* (2015) directed by Ericson Core

Luke Bracey is at his best as Johnny Utah, the ex-footballer turning FBI agent on the hunt for bank robbers. Edgar Ramirez is amazing as Bodhi, the robber who wants to avoid getting caught just long enough to surf the biggest wave of all time. The best scene takes place on a stormy beach.

Teen Beach Movie* (2013) directed by Jeffrey Hornaday

Two surfing lovers, Brady and McKenzie, whose relationship is nearing a close, find themselves swept into a violent (猛烈的) wave that sends them into a beach movie musical in the 60's. As a TV movie, Teen Beach Movie looks very Disney. Kids love it and so do the adults!

- () 1. What do The Shallows and Point Break have in common?
- A. They came out at the same time.
B. They include run-after and escape.
C. They make the audience light-hearted.
D. They focus on protecting the beaches.
- () 2. If you feel lonely, you may have the same feeling with _____.
- A. Tom Hanks B. Edgar Ramirez
C. Blake Lively D. Chuck Noland
- () 3. What's special about Teen Beach Movie?
- A. It is shown on TV.
B. It is a cartoon movie.
C. It is set on a beach.
D. It is about friendship.

[2024·湖南名校联考联合体高一期末]

When Steven Spielberg was a kid growing up in the 1950s in Arizona, watching westerns on his family's 20-inch black-and-white TV, he would climb right up to the screen, as if to surround himself with the image. He also wished he could see these moving pictures in colour. So he searched through his family's collection of slides quickly, having learned that by holding one film or another up to the television screen, he could turn greyed-out western skies blue, or the ground to a realistic-looking green. Sometimes his mum walked in, and saw him holding these slides up to both of his eyes, right next to the TV set. Often, she would say, "You're going to burn your eyes out!"

Spielberg's mum, like all the other 50s mums who said the same thing, was wrong about that. But we all know what she must have been thinking: Who is this child?

If you've seen even just one Steven Spielberg's movie in the past 50 years or so—Jaws, Schindler's List, E.T.—you have some sense of who this child grew up to be. And when you see his new film, The Fabelmans, a work of astonishing vividness that is drawn from his own family's story, you'll know even more. Movies have been around for roughly 130 years; Spielberg's career has covered more than a third of that. Yet The Fabelmans hardly feels like a late-career movie. It's a bridge for a new beginning.

Not every 75-year-old film-maker makes a movie like this. Of the ambitious young guys who remade Hollywood in the early 1970s, Spielberg is one of the few still making vital pictures at a consistent (一致的) clip. Yet his career is extraordinary in any context. He's made some box-office disappointments, but naming a badly-made Spielberg's film is hard, probably because there isn't one. No living film-maker can match his devotion to craftsmanship to find new ways of showing us things we think we've seen a million times before.

- () 4. How did Spielberg's mum feel when she saw her son's behaviour in front of the TV set?
- A. Proud but upset.
B. Surprised but supportive.
C. Worried and confused.
D. Annoyed and desperate.
- () 5. Which of the following is NOT a reason why Spielberg's career is regarded as extraordinary?
- A. He is devoted to filming ordinary things from new angles.
B. He showed great interest in filming at a very young age.
C. His career covers more than a third of the movie history.
D. All his films are probably well-made despite some box-office disappointments.
- () 6. What can be inferred about Spielberg's new film The Fabelmans?
- A. It's the most outstanding film he has ever made in his career.
B. It has been related to part of his growing experience.
C. It represents a totally brand-new type of film theme.
D. It established Spielberg as the most influential film-maker.
- () 7. What is the purpose of the text?
- A. To introduce a giant in film-making.
B. To demonstrate how to dare to be different.
C. To indicate curiosity makes success.
D. To recommend a pioneering new film.

China's box office revenue during the eight-day Spring Festival holiday through Saturday exceeded 8 billion yuan, which increased by 18.47% compared with the 2023 Spring Festival holiday's box office, according to the authority.

YOLO directed by comedian Jia Ling, led the holiday revenue chart with a revenue of 2.72 billion yuan with its tale of an overweight woman regaining self-confidence through boxing, resonating widely with young audiences eager to become better versions of themselves. Although the film has caused an online controversy due to Jia's significant weight loss and muscle gain, she once explained on her Weibo account, "The film is not related to weight loss and even has very little connection with boxing. It tells how a kind person finds herself and learns to love herself."

Pegasus 2 is the second highest-grossing film so far during the holiday with a revenue of 2.398 billion yuan, followed by the movie Boonie Bears: Time Twist with 1.389 billion yuan. While Pegasus 2, with actor Shen Teng acting as a former racing car champion, won over audiences with a tale of a man's incredible victory, Boonie Bears: Time Twist intrigued many children due to the popularity of the bears and their human friend, a logger who takes on a new job as a programmer in the latest movie.

Article 20 directed by Zhang Yimou—a movie exploring the definition of justifiable defense—is in fourth position with 1.34 billion yuan.

The most notable changes include the reduction of the average ticket price, the rising enthusiasm of audiences in third- and fourth-tier cities—who accounted for over 50 percent of the entire market—and the movies' themes being more related to the lives of ordinary Chinese people, said ZhiZhi Feina, a professor at the Chinese National Academy of Arts, adding that Chinese authorities have also tried to boost movie consumption.

Rao Shuguang, president of the China Film Critics Association, said that most of the highest-grossing movies are comedies, proving that such light-hearted tales cater to the festival atmosphere and hence appeal to many film-goers. He added that the future challenge for the domestic film industry is how to attain stable and sustainable development and encourage Chinese people to walk into cinemas regularly, not only during big holidays.

- () 8. According to Jia Ling, what is the main message of the film YOLO?
- A. The experience of weight loss and muscle gain.
B. The effort to find oneself and make oneself better.
C. The connection between boxing and self-confidence.
D. The tale of an overweight woman becoming a boxer.
- () 9. What does the underlined word "intrigued" in the third paragraph mean?
- A. Moved. B. Inspired.
C. Attracted. D. Persuaded.
- () 10. What can we learn from the passage?
- A. Pegasus 2 is directed by Zhang Yimou.
B. The movie ticket price has dropped sharply in 2024.
C. Many transformations stimulate the consumption of movies.
D. The revenue of YOLO makes up 25% of the total box office.
- () 11. What is Rao Shuguang's attitude towards the Chinese movie market?
- A. Hopeful. B. Concerned.
C. Indifferent. D. Negative.

A three-act structure is one particular way in which a story can be told and is often employed to write a screenplay. 1. _____. Though some writers find it imperfect, this structure works well for many screenplays.

The first act of the three-act structure is typically described as being the first fourth of a story. A 120-minute film would have the first act of about 30 minutes in length. In this section, the main and supporting characters are introduced and the basic problem of the story is presented. 2. _____.

Following the plot point, the second act of a story begins, as the hero sets off to solve the problem. 3. _____; therefore, it might be the middle 60 minutes of a 120-minute film. During this act, numerous obstacles (障碍) arise to prevent the hero from solving the problem.

At one point in the second act, all hope seems lost and the characters believe that success cannot be achieved. This is called the midpoint and falls about halfway through the story. 4. _____, and continue moving with a renewed purpose towards the plot point that ends the second act.

5. _____. In other words, it is about the last 30 minutes of a 120-minute film. In this section, the problem reaches its climax (高潮) at the moment of the greatest dramatic tension. Once this occurs, the problem is essentially solved and the remaining story is a resolution. It allows the audience to return to normality and enjoy the victory of the hero over the problem.

- A. They come through this, however
- B. This act is usually half of the story
- C. The problem seems to be challenging
- D. The final act is the last fourth of the story

- E. They have reached a low point, experiencing a “false” loss
- F. It ends with a plot point that consists of the hero taking on the problem
- G. This basic format breaks up the story into three pieces, each called an “act”

Lights, camera, action! Have you ever dreamed of being a director? At age 29, Di Di already has almost 10 years of directing experience under his belt. Through the media company he founded, he makes advertising and promotional videos, including for Tsinghua University.

For Di, becoming a director is “an adventure based on interest”. Majoring in journalism, he got into directing by chance. “In 2013, I came up with an idea for Tsinghua’s admissions video but couldn’t find a director,” Di said. “So I decided to be the director myself! I ended up really enjoying the process of being creative and working with a team. That was when I knew I wanted to be a director.”

While many people think that directors are experts at art, Di found that directors are, in fact, experts at management. “Only one-third of my time is spent on set. The rest of the time, I’m doing lots of planning with my customers and colleagues,” he said. This planning process includes working out the video’s theme with the client, creating a script, bringing together the visuals and text content, and also managing logistics like where to park the cars and how to bring electricity to the set.

Despite the pressure, Di gets great joy from making an impact through his works. In 2019, he made a film for Tsinghua University, which tells the story of a group of first-generation college students. It was viewed more than 15 million times on social media and became a hot top 20 trending topic on Sina Weibo. Being a first-generation college student himself, Di felt very passionate about the video’s goal of inspiring students to use their education to make a better life for their families. One month before the National College Entrance Examination in 2020, Di released a feature film, encouraging high school students to keep working hard after the exam was pushed back by one month.

“I want to uncover and share China’s stories with the world, true stories of Chinese youth fighting for their dreams,” said Di.

- () 1. What do we know about Di Di?
- A. He started directing at the age of 19.
 - B. He studied film directing at college.
 - C. He wanted to be a director when young.
 - D. He starred in Tsinghua’s admissions video.
- () 2. What does Di think is necessary for directors?
- A. The artistic skill.
 - B. The technical knowledge.
 - C. The money management skill.
 - D. The organizational skill.

Escape to a New Life—everyone's dream?

A TV series in Wales has become a heated issue by becoming the number one choice for teenagers to watch.

The main character is a young farmer and the series is about country life, making the popularity of the series all the more surprising. The series is calm and relaxing and really the opposite to city life. Escape to a New Life describes the Welsh countryside as a beautiful and peaceful place and its people as very caring and happy.

The series director believes that this is what young people want today. She says the success of the series is because teenagers want a happier and healthier life away from the pressures of deadlines and exams. She figures this series offers a form of escape from their fast and stressful lives.

Despite this, many parents and teachers are worried about the effect this is having on young people. Parents report that their children are just watching this series and neglecting everything else, using Escape to a New Life as an excuse for not completing homework, or refusing to revise for exams, citing a need for a happier and less stressful life.

One father, Paul McGregor, said his daughter Charlotte had changed a lot. He said, "She used to be in the school athletics team and loved the javelin, but now she only wants to watch the TV series and has been dropped from the team. She no longer completes her homework, saying it doesn't matter as she just wants to 'escape to a new life'."

Paediatrician, Dr Elisa Carhart who specialises in child mental health, says that TV can influence young people's decisions in life, but believes that if a young person reacts as strongly as Charlotte, it's likely that there are other reasons for the change in her behaviour.

- () 5. What is the TV series Escape to a New Life mainly about?
- A. How people escape from city life.
 B. How a Welsh farmer lives his life.
 C. How teenagers balance work and life.
 D. How the young live a relaxing life.
- () 6. Which is closest in meaning to "neglecting" in Paragraph 4?
- A. Paying no attention to.
 B. Making the most of.
 C. Feeling at home with.
 D. Complaining about.
- () 7. What is probably Paul McGregor's attitude towards the TV series?
- A. Unfavourable. B. Supportive.
 C. Unclear. D. Forgiving.
- () 8. What can we learn from Dr Elisa Carhart's words?
- A. One should not jump in with both feet.
 B. One man's meat is another man's poison.
 C. We'd better be a rainbow in somebody else's cloud.
 D. We should not throw the baby out with the bathwater.

阅读下面材料,根据其内容和所给段落开头语续写两段,使之构成一篇完整的短文。

Be a star of your own movie

I always loved the movies. It didn't even matter if I went to see them alone. In the movies, nothing seemed impossible: I became the star of the cheerleading team who leads her team to victory, or the teenager who bridges the gap between the races at her high school, or even the young woman who falls in love with a handsome nobleman from the nineteenth century. And I would always live happily ever after.

In fact, I liked to pretend what was happening on-screen was happening in my own life as well. I liked the happy endings, the perfect happy endings. I wanted my life to be like that, happy and wonderful. I wanted to escape the stress of family and friends and school. My only escape from the reality that trapped me was heading for a movie theatre.

I hadn't always been this way. As a young girl I was outgoing and friendly, and even involved in after-school activities. High school was different, though. I became quiet and withdrawn.

My parents were worried about me. They urged me to call old friends or get more involved with school. After promising my parents a thousand times that I would call one of my old friends, I finally agreed. The only number I knew by heart was Sarah's, so I called her. Sarah herself was pretty close to perfect: straight-A student, class president, off to Yale in the fall, beautiful, sweet, and brilliant. We decided to meet for a pizza lunch.

We ate and talked and caught up on old times. I told her how difficult it had been for me in the past few years and how unbearable the pressure had been. "I wish my life was the way it is in the movies," I sighed. "I would be so much easier." I looked down through my fingers, face in my hands. "I understand," she said. I looked up at her, questioning her with my eyes.

注意:续写词数应为 150 个左右。

Paragraph 1:

She explained she used to escape her realities by doing the same thing. _____

Paragraph 2:

Inspired by her words, I decided that I would produce my own life story. _____

Adaptation and innovation (创新) of traditional opera is an important trend in the Chinese opera circle in recent years. In order to attract young audience of the new generation and catch up with the time, the traditional opera circle makes efforts to create new works. In recent years, traditional opera has come across the change of time and society. It gradually lost the main elderly audience and was not attractive to the young.

In order to find new opportunities, using modern sound, light and digital stage effects, China's traditional Peking Opera, also known as jingju, is appealing to young people in a fashionable and innovative way, as the classic art faces an aging audience.

The centuries-old Tianleyuan Theatre in Beijing has taken the lead in introducing fashionable performances of Peking Opera. The opera combines instrumental music, vocal performance, mime (哑剧表演), dance and acrobatics (杂技).

Tianleyuan has a jingju art experience section and fashionable performances. It has attracted more than 2,000 audience members, mostly young people, according to theatre staff.

“Good art should keep pace with the times, so does jingju,” said Zhang Zishang, a 22-year-old performer of The Drunken Beauty, one of the classic jingju plays performed in the theatre. “I feel today's performance is very special,” Zhang added. She was born into a family of jingju performers and has had 10 years of stage experience. “Innovation is good, but we must also carry on the basic elements of jingju,” another young performer Deng said.

According to Deng, innovation is perhaps the best way for jingju to deal with the problem of an aging audience. Tianleyuan Theatre has made successful attempts to combine jingju with local opera forms such as ballet when organizing performances abroad. “Innovation can help traditional arts go further. We are happy to see many young faces, and some of them even come twice to experience the ‘new’ art,” she added.

- () 1. Why is adaptation and innovation of traditional opera important?
- A. To run after the fashion.
B. To attract the young audience.
C. To improve digital stage effects.
D. To change the traditional opera circle.
- () 2. Which of the following can best describe Tianleyuan Theatre?
- A. A destroyer of Peking Opera.
B. An objector of modern opera.
C. A pioneer of innovative opera.
D. A defender of traditional opera.
- () 3. How does Deng feel about the innovation of jingju?
- A. Favourable.
B. Unreliable.
C. Worthless.
D. Conservative.
- () 4. Which one can be a suitable title for the text?
- A. The traditional opera is dying out
B. The future of the traditional opera is promising
C. The performers of the traditional opera are supporting jingju
D. The traditional opera circle is innovating to attract young audience

We all know the hard work that film-makers and actors put in to provide us with entertainment. 1. _____ For decades now, film studios have used so-called test screenings to get feedback from members of the public before a movie comes out. Test audience members are usually asked to fill in a questionnaire after a screening, telling the film studio what they like and don't like.

2. _____ It measures test audiences' reactions by using special cameras placed inside cinemas. Pairing the cameras with custom software, the company can track what each audience member is feeling at any point in the movie, from anger to joy. 3. _____ The cameras can see in the dark, and the software can figure out a person's mood based on the slightest of facial expressions. It's hoped that this new method will allow more detailed feedback from test audiences because it can accurately read their reactions in real time.

Test screenings are highly valued in the movie industry. 4. _____ Viewers of E. T. The Extra-Terrestrial (1982) would have left the cinema feeling a whole lot different if it weren't for its test audiences' feedback. "In one cut of the film that was tested, E. T. died instead of going home in his spaceship. You won't be surprised to hear that the test audiences in question weren't interested in this ending at all," wrote media website Den of Geek. But for those who are concerned about privacy, the cameras won't be installed in public cinemas. 5. _____

- A. In reality, not all of the people are content with the effect of the movies.
- B. However, media giant Disney has come up with a more high-tech solution.
- C. This works by mapping 68 different points on each audience member's face.
- D. The special cameras in public cinemas easily go wrong and often fail to work.
- E. And several well-known movies have been greatly altered following feedback.
- F. But it seems that even regular moviegoers like us have a big impact on how a movie turns out too.
- G. After all, unless you're part of a test audience, being in front of the cameras is best left to the movie stars.
